

Making the Law of the Sea: A Study in the Development of International Law (Cambridge Studies in International and Comparative Law)

The law of the sea is an important area of international law which must be able to adapt to the changing needs of the international community. Making the Law of the Sea examines how various international organisations have contributed to the development of this law and what kinds of instruments and law-making techniques have been used. Each chapter considers a different international institution - including the International Maritime Organization and the United Nations - and analyses its functions and powers. Important questions are posed about the law-making process, including what actors are involved and what procedures are followed. Potential problems for the development of the law of the sea are considered and solutions are proposed. In particular, James Harrison explores and evaluates the current methods employed by international institutions to coordinate their law-making activities in order to overcome fragmentation of the law-making process.

Portland's Solar Equipment Installation Experts Referral SOLAR Save Money Help the Environment Gain Power Independence Learn About the Benefits of Solar Panels

"I had solar panels installed on my roof in July. Rob from Referral solar is very experienced and professional. He gave me recommendations based on my home and helped me choose from the different payment options based on my budget."

Judy C.

"I'm using zero net electricity and that feels wonderful. I've had the system up and running for two months now, and the results are better than I expected!"

Daniel M.

"I would highly recommend Referral Solar Portland to everyone! They installed solar panels at my home about a year ago. We've had rain since the install and no leaks to report. The energy we've been generating is consistent and clean. I couldn't be more pleased."
