

Walk-In

A middle-aged professor is brutally murdered by a serial killer. Now in the astral plane, she yearns to bring her killer to justice but instead is pulled into the body of a girl hundreds of miles away who has just died and whose body the professor reanimates. But as she begins to learn where and who she's supposed to be, she finds she's in witness protection, was stabbed by a hit-man, and is now without access to money, friends, or family. In order to stop her own serial killer, she must flee from her FBI protector and the hit-man while trying to connect with the only person whom she thinks might believe her and help her, a young man whom she might have loved in her other life if she hadn't been his mentor. And then the girl whose body she now controls begins to re-emerge. This metaphysical thriller will keep the reader up all night turning pages.
